Are You Prepared for the COVID-19 Aftershock?

COVID-19 has devastated the global community. It has plunged the market and disrupted supply chains across the public and private sectors. It has impacted all organizations, from small private enterprises to multinational conglomerates, paralyzing many operations and raising concerns for those managing to stay afloat. The economic outlook is uncertain, and the need to evaluate enterprise resilience is of utmost importance.

All organizations need to successfully answer questions like these, to assess and position themselves for current and future organizational health and preparedness:

1. How will unfolding disruptions change your short-term and long-term capital and operational plans? Are you currently capable of taking cost-effective steps to adapt to these disruptions?
2. What impact will the changes to external forces like government policy, financial markets and global supply chains have on your future revenue stream and long-term financial health?
3. Can you take advantage of injections of stimulus or temporary regulatory changes? How will these affect the competitive landscape?
4. Is your organization’s framework, from finance to people and operations, able to withstand the anticipated aftershocks of COVID-19?
5. Can your organization cope when the next major disruption occurs?

Rethinking Resilience with Scenario Planning and Data-Driven Decision-Making

As COVID-19 continues to render volatile conditions, it’s imperative to incorporate scenario planning in your response plan to understand and prepare for the economic and fiscal implications that follow.

At WSP, technical expertise is in our DNA. Our multi-disciplinary technical and advisory teams can generate and stress-test multiple scenarios specific to your needs and desired outcomes. We simplify the process and help build data-driven frameworks, vetted by technical experts, to maximize your organization’s resilience and mitigate risk.

We will also support you in:
- developing a risk assessment model to track the pandemic’s impact on key financial metrics;
- making decisions related to the development of your business or service framework;
- facilitating online meetings and workshops;
- conceptualizing policy and mitigation measures;
- and undertaking comprehensive resilience analyses for operational, social and economic impacts of the pandemic.

At WSP, we will guide you through alternative future scenarios to help you build resilience and ensure your organization is future-ready.

For more information on how WSP can support your organizational COVID-19 response, please contact:

Adrian Lightstone
Principal Consultant, Advisory Services
adrian.lightstone@wsp.com
416-277-7683